

Jane Rosenthal

Combining family and career has always been a challenge for this active mother and grandmother. After pursuing careers as an English teacher, journalist, freelance writer, and personnel consultant, Jane now has time to pursue her first love — creative writing. As a participant in the Memoir Writing Group at the JCCNV, she has drawn on her experiences growing up as the great-granddaughter of Regina Margareten, one of the founders of the Horowitz-Margareten matzoh company, and as a former editor of the Family Journal. Originally from Brooklyn, NY, she has lived in Tampa, FL, Miami Beach, FL, Orange, CT, and Warner Robbins, GA. She has traveled extensively with her husband Norman in the U.S. and abroad and has been living in the Burke, VA area since 1986. She is a member of Congregation Olam Tikvah and the JCCNV. A grandmother with three grandchildren, Jane and Norman frequently visit with their sons, Dan and Jesse, and daughters-in-law in Arlington, VA and West Yarmouth, MA.
